Besides, gasoline rationing keeps people from travelling as much as under normal conditions, which results in more home town buying.

Good Year For Church

London (CP)—Churchmen can look back on an encouraging year in 1942, in which the more hopeful progress of the war has been paralleled by developments of happy augury in the ecclesiastical sphere, said a review of the year by the Press Bureau of the Church of England.

Council Asks Province to Aid in Flood Control

Julia Binda No Longer Town Charge; Will Prosecute Citizens Guilty of Dumping Ashes and Other Rubbish in West Coleman Creek.

Regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening. Present Mayor Antrobus, Councillors Abousafy, Cox, Dull, Ford, and Ramsay.

Bandmaster James Lowe was present to protest against the accusation that some youthful members of his band were responsible for leaving the door to the council chamber open one stormy evening, allowing snow to drift into the hall corridor, and also to the charge that cigarette butts and ashes were left on the table and floor of the council chamber. He stated he had questioned all members of the band who had been present for practice that evening and all had disclaimed being responsible for leaving the door open or leaving cigarettes and ashes in the chamber. It appeared that a meeting had been held earlier to the band practice by some unknown organization. As a result of the debate council asked Constable Antle to keep a record of all parties holding meetings in the council chamber.

The returning officer's report declaring Messrs. Abousafy and Ford elected to the council by acclamation was received and filed.

A letter was received from the Salvation Army home in answer to a letter sent by council regarding Julia Binda. It was revealed that Julia is now eighteen years of age and has two years of a high school education. Due to her age she is no longer a town charge and it was moved that the town relieve itself of her support. It was pointed out that the town had been paying $12 monthly for the past sixteen or seventeen years for the support of this girl.

Permission was granted Crescent Shows to appear here on May 13, 14 and 15, on the same basis of licensing as in past years.

Correspondence concerning Carolina Lycka was received and filed. The Salvation Army asked for a donation to aid in financing homes in the province for the old people, young women, etc. A grant of $10 was authorized and will be paid when other annual requests from various provincial homes are received.

An invoice from the Workmen's Compensation Board was authorized paid.

After discussion on a letter from Mayor Lewis, of Ottawa, it was decided to become a member of the Dominion body of municipal councils. Fee was $10.

A letter was received from a Social Credit organization at Lethbridge commending the local council on its resolution sent to the federal government regarding social security and monetary reform.

Coleman has four rinks entered in the Crow bonspiel which started at Bellevue and Blairmore arenas on Sunday morning. After the day's play three of the local rinks remained undefeated, McBurney and Boulton winning three and Kerr two. The Leier rink was the lone casualty losing two games, both by narrow scores.

There are close to 20 rinks competing, three coming from Pincher Creek. The games will be resumed next Sunday.

Cigarette Fund Notes

Dear friends: The special Christmas parcel of 100 cigarettes arrived safely. I would like to express my sincerest thanks to the Coleman Local union, U. M. W. A., and the Overseas Welfare Fund. We spent a very pleasant Christmas. Adding greatly to our happiness was the knowledge that our friends back home did not forget us. It is especially at Christmas time we like to remember and be remembered. Coleman did itself proud. Wishing you all the best for 1943. —J. T. Dunbar.

Others heard from during the past two weeks included: W. S. Vollendorf, G. F. Simms, Sergeant Kroesing, Mel Cousins, J. McQuarrie, D. H. Foster, Lewis Brown, Corporal R. Burt, A. MacQuarrie, L. Joseph, R. Lowe.

port on a meeting of the ration board held at Blairmore recently. New ration books will be issued this month. Arrangements had been made by him to have 3500 books sent to Coleman and he had been busy during the past week making suitable arrangements for the distribution of these books to local citizens. Following much discussion council asked Mayor and Mrs. Antrobus to act as supervisors in the distribution of the ration books at their store. Mayor Antrobus and Councillor Abousafy would engage voluntary help to aid in the distribution. An advt. appears elsewhere in this issue carrying complete details on the distribution of these books.

Still endeavoring to get someone in flood control work letters were authorized sent to Minister of Public Works W. A. Fallow, E. O. Duke, M.L.A. and P. M. Sander, of the Federal water resources department, asking that immediate action be taken in order to prevent floods in Coleman.

Several citizens residing near the creek in west Coleman were severely criticized by council. It appears they are dumping ashes, tin cans and other rubbish in the creek and so contributing to one of the causes of flood. An Advt. was authorized to be placed in The Journal warning people, guilty of this practice, that they would be prosecuted and Constable Antle was ordered to interview such guilty people and give them a severe reprimand, with the added threat of prosecution should they again be found guilty of this offence.

Calgary Buffaloes to Oppose Pass All Stars in Hockey Game at Local Arena on Saturday at 9 p.m.

First Senior Game in Two Years at Arena; Stars of Past Seasons To Be Seen in Action; Game Sponsored by Local Lions Club.

Hockey fans of Coleman and the Pass will have the opportunity of witnessing the first senior hockey game of the season on Saturday at 9 p.m. The teams are Calgary Buffaloes and Pass All Stars. The game is being sponsored by Coleman Lions club and proceeds will be placed in the local and war charities fund.

The Buffaloes are managed by Dave Duchak, of Trail Smoke Eaters hockey fame and a player who has been seen locally on several occasions. Dave has sent the following line-up of players to be seen in action on Saturday. They are: Timmins, goal; McGoldrick, Arbour, McDonald, Sprout, McFarlane and Craddock, defence; Camyrie and Dewar, left wing; Smith, Ramsay, Hudson and Atkinson, left wing; Cairus and Du-

Jimmy Joyce is managing the local team and has lined up the following players with several others still to be added: Pow, Murdoch, Joyce, Kwasnie, Fleming, Fraser, Pavlus, Petrosky, Kanik, Mozelle, Moore and Fields.

The locals have been practising regularly for the big game and have rapidly rounded into shape as the majority of them have been skating regularly since the winter season started.

Should this game be as successful as anticipated it is quite probable that the Lions Club will be encouraged to bring in two other senior teams.

Admission is adults 50 cents and children 25 cents. Tickets can be obtained at the Pattinson Hardware store where an advance ticket office has been set up.

Rink manager Ray Spillers has an exceptionally good sheet of ice in the arena and the game should be fast and exciting.

St. Paul's Church Annual Congregational Meeting Report

On Tuesday evening February 2 at 7:30 o'clock, the congregation of St. Paul's United Church met for the annual congregational meeting and was fairly well attended.

At this meeting the finances and the activities of the different organizations were reported. A fairly detailed financial statement of all the organizations had been prepared in duplicate and placed in the hands of those present at the meeting. This statement along with verbal reports from representatives of the different organizations of the activities of the different phases of the church's work presented quite a bright picture of the year's achievements.

This year there was some development in organization work, not only in respect to new organizations formed including a second Trail Ranger group of boys, and the C.G.I.T. group of girls under the leadership of Miss Rheta Ash, making in all four groups of boys and girls meeting during mid-week; but the Junior choir was more closely organized and functioning regularly along with the senior choir, which with its reorganization of this last fall under the leadership of Mr. James Cousins, is gathering strength and effectiveness. This general advance in our organization work has borne fruit during the year.

At the beginning of the year the Board of Stewards found their finances in a rather precarious position, due largely to the fact that our active Ladies' Association had devoted practically all their funds to the manse project during the last two years, and were unable to assist in financing the local work; but a canvass by the church board of our congregation for financial aid during the early part of 1942 resulted in a very substantial increase in the use of the weekly envelope and contributions during this past year which has enabled the Board of Stewards to meet practically all

Unlicensed Dogs Creating A Nuisance On Streets

Only Eleven Dog Owners Have Purchased Tags; Unlicensed Dogs May be Destroyed After March.

The dog population appears to be on the increase, judging from the number that frequent the main streets each day. Only eleven owners in town have seen fit to purchase dog tags for 1943 out of an estimated 150 dogs residing in town.

Added to this dog nuisance is the number that reside in east Coleman and follow the children to school each morning. On one morning fifteen dogs were counted running about the school yard. They are to be seen several strong barking and snapping at cars as they cruise along the streets. One dog attacked and bit a pedestrian at the east end of main street two weeks ago, resulting in police making an investigation. The dog in question hailed from east Coleman.

March 31 is the deadline set for securing dog tags and dogs failing to have a tag by that date are in danger of being destroyed. On occasions ratepayers have written the council regarding the dog nuisance, asking that something be done about it. It would be to the best interest of dog lovers to get their tags immediately as it is quite possible the council will decide after the March deadline to crack down on stray and unlicensed dogs.

Principal D. Hoyle Speaks On Beveridge Plan

Economic and Social Security To Every Individual; Report on Hockey Game Given

Monday evening, Feb. 8 at their regular supper meeting at the Grand Union club room, Mr. D. Hoyle, principal of Coleman schools, addressed a well attended meeting of members and guests of the Coleman Lions Club on the much talked of Beveridge Plan of Social Security.

Our guest speaker had given previous reading and study to the plan as outlined in Beveridge's report, and stated that he was interested in the report and had more confidence in the genuineness and reliability of it because of the great number of specialists who had spent years in various fields of investigation relating to social and economic welfare, and that in addition these men chosen to assist Sir Beveridge were under no obligation whatever to the government of Britain, nor influenced by it.

He stated that the Beveridge Plan originated from a request of Sir Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Labour for the Churchill government, that Beveridge should be asked to work out a plan of social security to be put into force by the government of Britain after the war. Beveridge was given a free hand to work out his plan. And after much research on the part of Beveridge and his associates, who had had already many years of experience and expert knowledge of practically every phase of Britain's life, this report was compiled and now it has been given to the public in book form.

The report is so extensive and intensive that the speaker had time only to touch on the many phases of its investigation, but the plan will include every individual in Britain including young and old, rich and poor, and that the success of the plan depended upon chiefly economic and social security to every individual, and especially the child, a thorough and just rehabilitation scheme after the war, and the cutting of unemployment in peace time to at least 15 per cent.

After the conclusion of this very interesting address there was a period of discussion which cleared up many points for the listeners. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hoyle for his information on this subject.

During the meeting a report was given of the exhibition hockey game scheduled for Saturday evening of this week, Feb. 13, at 9 o'clock, between the Calgary Buffaloes and the Crow's Nest Pass All Stars at the Coleman arena. Every effort is being made on the part of the sponsors, The Coleman Lions club, to make this a very entertaining and profitable night in aid of local and national charities.

New Domesday Book

Record Of Farms In England Will Soon Be Completed

After nearly nine hundred years, the famous Domesday Book is being revised. It follows a complete survey of England since the time of William the Conqueror, when the first Domesday Book was published. The original book dealt with the farms of England, and the new book records such things as the condition of each major farm, its equipment, the crops it is growing, the live stock it carries. It reports on the state of the land, the efficiency of the men farming it, and the adequacy of such services as water supply and electricity.

The work has been done by official surveyors assisted by nearly 6,000 farmers. They have covered 37,000,000 acres, inspecting every field on 300,000 farms. Many of these farms in England have remained intact since the time of King William. His object was to find how much could be collected from the farmers in taxes. The present objective is to see how much food can be raised for the community. The old Domesday Book took 20 years to complete. The new one will be completed in exactly that number of months.

Help For China

Chinese Security And Independence Is Needed To Win The War

Help for China, as Gen. Smuts has said, is "one of their most important objects." Without the establishment of Chinese security and independence the war will not be won. The magnificent resistance of the Chinese is a momentous factor in all the strategy of the Far East.

That co-operation and good will which finds its machinery in the representation of the Chinese Government on the Pacific Council requires that China should exercise beyond doubt the full equality of a nation whom, in the Prime Minister's phrase, we are proud to acclaim as "fellow architects of victory."

The United Nations are not fighting to give one privileges over another but for a free world. In the freedom after peace the co-operation of China will be needed by America, Russia, Britain and the whole of mankind.—London Daily Telegraph.

But Is Now Turning It In For Scrap Metal

Maj. J. E. Snow, U.S.A., is turning in for bullet metal scrap, a sharp-shooter's cup which he won in competition with a crack Japanese team 15 years ago.

The cup that was being competed for was in reality the "Emperor's Cup" of solid silver. But when a foreigner won it, the Japanese discovered this would involve such a "loss of face" for the emperor that they begged Snow to accept a more modest cup.

Snow accepted but has now decided to send it back in a form that will do most good.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 14
JESUS HEALS A MAN BORN BLIND

Golden text: One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see. John 9:25.
Lesson: John 9.
Devotional reading: Psalm 27:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Gives Sight to a Blind Man, John 9:1-8. When Jesus met a man who had been blind from birth, he saw an opportunity to make manifest the works of God, and was reminded of the shortness of time yet remaining in which he could fulfill his mission on earth. "I must work the work of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work," he said. "As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." It was his mission to dispense light.

Jesus spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle, then anointed the eyes of the blind man. Doubtless he did this in order to let the man feel his ministering touch, to awaken expectancy, to arouse the man's faith through the use of means popularly supposed efficacious and to test his obedience. Then Jesus ordered him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam. The man obeyed, and when he came back seeing, the neighbors scarcely believed that it was he.

The Pharisees Question the Man and His Parents, John 9:13-34. Because the miracle was wrought on the Sabbath and broke the ritual law, some of the Pharisees said that Jesus was a sinner, but others said, "How could a sinner do such a miracle?" When they asked the man what he thought of Jesus he answered, "He is a prophet." Next they claimed to doubt that the man had been blind, and they summoned his parents. His parents feared the Pharisees, for the latter had threatened to excommunicate anyone who should acknowledge Jesus to be the Christ, so they said that they knew this was their son who had been born blind but now could see, but as to how he had received his sight, he, who was of age, could tell them. The Greek word translated "of age" refers literally to stature, he was full grown. A man was said to be of mature age at 30. Again they called the young man before them and put him on oath. ("The words Give glory to God were the form of an oath proposed by the chief magistrate to those who were to give evidence to any particular fact; or to attest anything, as produced by, or belonging to, the Lord. See Joshua 7:19.") "Confess what we know, that Jesus is a sinner," they adjured him. "Whether he sins against your creeds I know not; one thing I do know, that whereas I was blind, now I see," he stoutly maintained.

Farmers Were Clever

Russians Took Food Through Nazi Lines To Besieged Leningrad

The story of Pyotr Ivanovitch, a fictitious name for any of the patriotic farmers who helped feed Leningrad, at one critical time in its 17 months of siege, was told by Russian war relief officials in New York.

Although the Nazis besieged the city, they did not control all the surrounding territory. There were "islands" of resistance off the main highways where Russians still tilled their farms within sound of the battlefields. Pyotr Ivanovitch and his friends were clever. When their carts were loaded they padded their horses' hooves with burlap wrapping. They secured a harness which might jingle and they moved in convoys. Along familiar backroads they crept stealthily, guided by their guerrilla friends in force. There were women among the guerrillas as many as 50 sometimes, armed with tommyguns and skilled in the use of the most quiet ways of swiftly dispatching any Nazi who chanced to raise his head as the convoys moved through the German lines. It was a perilous job, but the Russian war relief says about 400 tons of food were delivered in this way to the hungry inhabitants.

Nazi guns and bombs might damage the water supply system, but the Russians were strong even in hunger, and 2,000 young men and women were mobilized to draw water from holes in the ice of Lake Ladoga and the Neva river.

Winter was the hardest time. Not only was food lacking, but there was no fuel for domestic use. Fuel and power went to hospitals and factories.

Women and school children cut down trees for fuel. Through two winters the schools were unheated although there were 90,000 children in attendance.

His Own Troubles

Lord Halifax Does Not Show His Sorrow To World

Once, in the old dead days of the isolationist debate, Britain's devout Lord Halifax stopped to chat with an American mother picketing his hotel with an anti-war banner. He listened gravely to her story of her nine sons, said quietly: "I, too, have sons," shook hands, walked on.

One of his three sons, Lieut. Francis Hugh Peter Wood, 26, was killed in Egypt last November. The U.S. would never have known, save for dispatches from London. Nor could anyone who met the British ambassador in recent weeks, or worked with him at the embassy, or watched him listen to the president's speech to congress, have guessed that Lord Halifax had learned that his youngest son, Lieut. Richard Frederick Wood, 22, had lost both legs when wounded by a Nazi bomb in Libya—Time.

SANDS OF HAZARD

CHAPTER VI

STOREY and Annette Fournier listened tensely to metallic clicks and rasps as the guard struggled to insert the key, and then they heard his voice, plaintive and trembling. "The key will not go into the lock. O Sheik! The key knows we are here and has jammed the keyhole full of twisted wire or something."

Immedin grunted. "That is impossible. Where, in those bare cells, would a prisoner obtain a length of wire or any other metal? Give me that key!"

Out of the lock came sounds like the gnawing of a rat. The key on Storey's side of the door wobbled in indication that the Berber was prying against the obstruction that prevented the door from being opened. But the key of Storey resisted all attempts to dislodge it, and the American grimed in the darkness.

Abruptly the scraping sounds were replaced by silence. A flash of intuition told Storey what was about to happen. A quick stride carried him away from the door to the side of Annette. "Get over there!" he muttered in her ear. "As far away from the door as you can!"

In the darkness he saw the girl move to the cot at the end of the room. He stepped in the opposite direction, placing his back against the wall at the side of the door. Neither Immedin nor the guard knew that he was in the cell with Annette. Hardly had Storey gained his position when the sound of a pistol shot echoed throughout the prison. The bullet thumped into the door, cracking through the wood and metal about the lock. The offending key flew from its shattered slot, falling to the floor with pieces of splintering wood. More shots followed and the iron lock rocked in its bed, cracking under the blows of the concentrated fire, and, with the final shot, became a shattered ruin.

The door creaked, then moved inward under an unseen hand. The light of the lamp in the hall threw a yellow square in the floor of the cell and brought into relief the figure of Annette huddled on the cot against the wall. The swinging door had paused almost at right angles with the wall, cutting off any view of Jack Storey, who was behind it.

"There is the girl, O Spahi," said Immedin. "Drag her out!" A shadow fell on the floor. As the guard stepped into the cell, the crunch of his boots on the floor was a cover for the soft footfalls of Storey as he advanced step for step with him in the dark shadows on the other side of the door.

Storey halted when he had reached the end of the door. The shoulder of the guard almost brushed against him. As the Algerian strode past him, Storey thrust out his foot and hooked his ankle about that of the unsuspecting man.

The guard tripped and sprawled, landing heavily on the floor before the cot of Annette Fournier. Before the fellow could make a move to rise, the girl had divided from the pallet to the floor, landing like a springing tigress on the head and neck of the Spahi.

"By Allah!" came the exasperated snarl of Immedin. "Thou are as clumsy as thou art witless! Get up, you oaf, and bring out that girl!" But, for the moment, that was an order impossible for the hapless Spahi to obey. Had Annette landed on his shoulders or his back he could have shaken her off. But the weight of the girl was on the man's head and neck, pinning him to the floor, and any effort to dislodge her placed the soldier in danger of breaking his own neck.

The lighted area of the floor shifted shape, indicating that Immedin was lowering the body hastily to the floor of the hall. Then the elongated shadow of the tall sheik swept into the cell as the Berber hurried to the assistance of the trapped Spahi, thrashing on the floor like a decapitated fowl.

Jack Storey gathered himself, and ANNETTE, too, came to a pause beside him. It was explained, at last why the soldiers of Capt. Lebeau were not investigating the shooting in another part of the building. Lined up against the wall of the office were Sgt. Jardin and a dozen Spahis, and filling the room almost to capacity were the Berbers of Immedin, every man of whom had a weapon of some sort in his hand.

"You cannot go through there, Jacques," whispered Annette. "The light will fall on your face as soon as you step in the room and they will know you for a masquerader."

Storey rubbed his chin, then his face cleared. "If I should carry you through the door, the hood of your baracca might prevent them from obtaining a clear view of my features—"

For answer Annette turned to face him, stepping closer like a child waiting to be lifted by a parent. Storey gathered the small figure in his arms and the dark curls of the girl brushed against his face as he needed her head under his chin.

"Let your arms hang loose and keep your eyes closed," he murmured in her ear, then strode toward the room filled with light and with men.

There was a stir of bodies and a babel of voices as Storey entered the crowded office and instantly he was surrounded by a mill of robed figures. But Storey refused to allow the press to slow his progress toward the door.

"Outside, O Kahiri," he commanded, without breaking his stride, his rasping voice muffled by the folds of the coat against his nose and lips. "Our work is done."

Their own clamor prevented the Berbers from detecting any foreign quality in the voice of their supposed leader. They trooped after Storey as the American marched out of the office, through the remaining hall, and then out into the night-dimmed street.

ONE lone Kahiri was in the position guarding the camels of the Berbers. The Kahiri, anxious for news, stepped ahead and grouped themselves about a certain kneeling dromedary, and thus unwittingly informed Storey which was the mount of Sheik Immedin.

"The foreigner tried to run away," Storey growled. "He is dead—which explains the shouting you heard."

Still holding Annette, he swung himself into the saddle of the camel and found the stirrups with his toes.

The dromedaries hunched together, moving down the street. They reached the corner and turned. The point of direction was such that Storey drew his camel to a halt.

"No!" he rasped. "We do not go that way!"

Surprised faces turned toward the supposed Immedin as the Berbers pulled their camels up short. A voice said, "but this is the way you yourself had decided that we were to leave the oasis, O Sheik—"

Storey cursed under his breath. "If I know, he tried to explain. 'We go this way, as I said. But you, my sons, seem to have forgotten the silver of the foreigners. Must we leave that wealth behind? Go, some of you, to the caravanserai, and secure the silver in the saddle bags of the dead outlander. I shall meet you outside the wall—'"

The last uncompleted sentence fell upon unhearing ears. At the first mention of lost every Berber, anxious to get his hands on his share of the ownerless silver, jerked his dromedary around and bolted back toward the inn, leaving Storey and Annette alone in the dust-filled street.

GOOD SALES TALK

An insurance agent was trying to sell a hanker, but wasn't getting along too well. "I think I'll let this hold over for a couple of months," the banker finally told him.

"I can give you a policy that won't pay anything to your wife in the event of your death within the next two months," the agent said. "How would you like that?"

"I wouldn't buy a policy like that," the banker said.

"Well, that's the kind you get if you don't apply now."

We understand that the banker bought.

Milk, fruits, vegetables, meat and whole grain cereals are the frontliners, while sweets and butter along with other fats provide energy in the back row.

Canadians are being asked to use less butter. A reduction of one ounce a week is the amount of the saving asked for. This means that individual consumption must be reduced by a little less than a teaspoonful a day. Not a very large amount, certainly, and the saving will impose no hardship on anyone.

It must be remembered, says Nutrition Services, that butter is a source of some of the daily requirement of Vitamin A as well as a source of energy. The principal sources of this vitamin are the leafy green and yellow vegetables, so be sure to include more of these in menus when limiting the family supply of butter.

SMILE AWHILE

"Are your eggs fresh?"
"Madam, the hen doesn't realize I've got them yet."

Wife—"The doctor said at once that I needed a stimulant. Then he asked to see my tongue."

Husband (alarmed)—"Good heavens! I do hope he didn't give you a stimulant for that, dear."

"Cheer up," said the doctor, "I've had exactly the same complaint myself."

"Yes," replied the patient, doubtfully, "but you didn't have the same doctor?"

Neighbor (sympathetically)—"And I know how long these years must seem to you."

Deserted Wife—Yes, but I remember when he left just as if he had been yesterday—how he stood at the door holding it open until six ties got into the house.

"Oh, yes, they are a distinctly literary family," said one neighbor to another. "The daughter writes poetry nobody will print, the son writes plays nobody will act, and the mother writes novels nobody will read."

"And what does the father write?"

"Oh, he writes cheques that nobody will cash."

Mandy—Dey says that young niggah Exados Johnson done got a terrible position in de army.

Liza—Is dat so? What sort uv a position is it?

Mandy—Why, dey say he's done attached to a flyin' corps.

The Boss—Say, young lady, you're 20 minutes late again. Don't you know what time we start to work in this store?

New Employee—Why, no, sir. They're always at it when I get here.

Mrs. White—"Mrs. Gray's husband didn't leave her much when he died, did he?"

Mrs. Black—"No, but he left her often while he was alive."

Mrs. Scott, reading the evening newspaper: "It says, 'Stock up on coal now.'"

Bill: "That's a fine thing to tell us with our coal bin full of sugar."

The teacher inquired whether the pupils had their favorite song they would like to sing.

"The National Anthem," suggested one.

"What made you think of the National Anthem?"

"Because," replied the boy, "then's it's time to go home."

Lively Words Add Spice

Bill can't wait for his next date with Dorothy.

He can almost see her happy smile, the friendly twinkle in her eye. Her shining vocabulary gives her talk charm.

How he chuckled when she tells him about the Joneses' new French poodle. "Just like a clump of neatly trimmed shrubbery rushing out to greet you."

And how his mouth waters as she speaks of those "crisp, golden muffins" she's planning for Saturday breakfast. (Can YOU make commonplace things vivid and amusing?)

Because she keeps her eyes open, picks up fresh colorful words and phrases from newspapers and magazines Dorothy never resorts to worn-out comebacks like "You're telling me" (How's YOUR repartee?)

And she's correct. You don't catch her saying "between you and I" for "between you and me," hadn't ought" for "ought not." (What's YOUR score on errors in English?)

Chatting with old friends, meeting new ones, or talking to the boss, you need a good vocabulary—and our 32-page booklet tells you how to build it. Lists errors you're likely to make and gives correct forms. Explains meanings of words often misused, tells what slang isn't acceptable.

An Excellent Food | Need Export Permit

For Balancing Food Shortages There Are Many Fish Varieties

Balancing food shortages in many lines, several varieties of fish are obtainable in most sections of Canada.

An excellent food in itself, fish lends itself to combination with many other foods, and can be served in dozens of different ways, hot and cold.

A recipe book, "100 Tempting Fish Recipes," telling clever and attractive ways to serve the different kinds of fish from Canadian coastal and inland waters, will be forwarded on request by the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.

GOLFER BY TAXI

War has done what age could not do in the case of E. J. Adams, of Gresham, England. Adams, now 93, has given up golf. He had pursued the game by taxi, using a cab to drive around the course. The judge ruled such a "waste" of gasoline illegal, and fined the cab driver.

Three Varieties Of Fresh Water Fish Now Under Control

Three varieties of fresh-water fish—pickerel, whitefish and lake trout—now require an export permit before being shipped from Canada to any destination, the trade and commerce department announced.

The order went into effect Jan. 26 and applies to the fish whether fresh or frozen, filleted or not. The order was requested by the Prices Board "because the growing export trade in fresh-water fish is beginning to threaten our domestic supply."

A statement said the aim in placing the fish under export control was not to prohibit their export but to provide a "fair and impartial means of distributing the benefits of export trade among the fishermen and companies concerned, help check the activities of speculative and irregular operators and aid in stabilizing market prices for fresh-water fish, both in Canada and the United States."

Rev. W. Gray Rivers,
B.A., Visits The Pass TownsAddressed A Boys' Rally in United Church Club Room

This last week-end the Boys' Work Secretary of Religious Education for the province of Alberta, Rev. W. Gray Rivers, B.A., visited the Pass. According to plan the Trail Ranger and Explorer groups of the Pass organized a Boys' Rally at St. Paul's United church club room, Coleman, Friday evening, Feb. 5 at 7.30 o'clock. One car load of boys attended from Hillcrest, two car loads of boys and their leaders attended from Blairmore, and about thirty boys along with leaders were present from the Boys' Groups at Coleman.

As Rev. Mr. Rivers came in by bus Friday evening and didn't arrive at the club room till approximately 8.30 p.m., the large group of boys were led in group games and contests to their enjoyment. And incidentally, they worked off some of their superfluous energy in readiness for a more quiet type of entertainment to follow.

Mr. Rivers gave the boys a very interesting talk on boys' development as related to their programme work, and then spent some time in explaining the habits and insignia in which the boys were much interested. Then following a sing-song of a number of new camp and group songs, Mr. Rivers showed a very interesting set of colored slides of camp life and mountain scenery, pictures of which he had taken himself. The slides of the natural colored sunsets were most extraordinary.

Then followed a phase of the programme necessary to all boys gatherings, a lunch, consisting of weiners and rolls with cocoa, which concluded a most enjoyable evening in which the leaders and many of the boys had an opportunity of becoming more closely acquainted with our Boys' Work secretary.

Sunday morning Rev. M. Rivers was the guest speaker at the 11 o'clock worship service at St. Paul's United church, Coleman, where his message, on the guidance of boys and girls, was received with much appreciation. Sunday evening Mr. Rivers addressed the United church congregation at Blairmore.

Saturday forenoon and afternoon both Blairmore and Coleman boys enjoyed a ski with Mr. Rivers on the Blairmore slide, including a couple of fast ones from the top. Thus a full and enjoyable week-end was spent with Mr. Rivers.

Hockey Notes

Coleman's four Pee Wee hockey clubs have been very active since Jan. 16, and to date one half of the regular league schedule has been completed. Following the second half the play-offs for the Red & White cup will take place.

The players selected their own coaches, namely: Lions, Mike Hudt; Elks, Doug. Jenkins; Pattinson's, John Rypien; Legion, Jimmy Slugg. As in the previous year, four captains selected the players, and judging by the keen rivalry shown in games that have been played, the boys were able to keep the four teams evenly matched.

League scores: Legion 2, Elks 0; Lions 4, Pattinson's 2; Lions 3, Elks 2; Pattinson's 4, Legion 3; Lions 2, Legion 0; Elks 6, Pattinson's 5.

Elks	1	2	8	10	2

Midweek: Shamrocks 4, Canadians 3; Shamrocks 2, Canadians 1.

The local juveniles played Bellevue juveniles on Sunday, Jan. 31, the locals winning 12-3. This team is entered in the play-offs and the boys are selling booster tags to finance their club. These tags will entitle the holders to any local juvenile play-off game. Give this club which opened the arena your support.

Juvenile provincial play-offs are scheduled to start the week of Feb. 15.

"There is no single organization in Canada today that has given more freely of their time and talents than the Boy Scouts. They have been ever ready and willing to help any good cause. Needless to say they will be willing and anxious to take up this new course (ARP). In this field there will be many opportunities of adding new laurels to their already long list of worthwhile achievements."—Halifax, N. S. Star.

TO THE CITIZENS OF COLEMAN

My mother and I desire to warn the general public against the tendency of Sidney Houghton to collect subscriptions for schemes that do not exist. If he should call upon you to sell lottery tickets, pool tickets or subscriptions of any kind we would appreciate it very much if you would chase him from your door and notify us. This has been the source of a great deal of worry and trouble to us and we would appreciate the co-operation of the public in checking this complex he has developed. Yours truly, Mrs. J. Houghton and H. Houghton.

Douglas BevanMissing After Air Operations

Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Bevan, of Cayley, have received official word that their son, Sgt. Observer Douglas Bevan, is reported missing after air operations.

On graduation as an observer he was stationed in Montreal and attached to the Bomber Ferry Command with R.A.F. He is reported missing as from Dec. 25.

He is 29 years of age and was born in Ontario. He received his education in the Coleman public and high schools, at Mount Royal College and University of Alberta. He graduated from Camrose Normal and was successively principal in the E.I.D. near Tilley and at Patricia. At the time of enlistment in the R.C.A.F. he was vice-principal of the Rimbey high school. He was married in June of last year to Miss Mollie Kent McLees, of Rimbey.

How to Treat Your Doctor

If emergencies arise, call him at any hour.

If no emergency exists, call him at proper hours.

Try to see him at his regular office hours. This will accommodate you and him.

When possible, send in requests for home visits before 11 a.m.

Don't demand his time when he is at meals.

Unless necessary, don't make demands on his hours allotted to sleep. Don't nurse your ailments all day and then call him after he has gone to bed.

Allow him all the rest possible on Sunday. Everybody ought to rest one day in seven.

Pay his accounts promptly so that he will be able to provide the best methods of restoring you to health or of maintaining your present good health.

Physicians are made of the same material as their patients, and so require rest, food, sleep and time for study and proper recreation. The rested doctor will give you better advice than one who is overworked.

To Build Victory Stable

The Canadian Legion members, temporary owners of Winnie, the Wonder Horse, are going to build it a Victory stable next week. The stable will be located in the Pattinson Hardware and will be surrounded by the Union Jack, Australian, American and Canadian flags. In the midst of the luxurious surroundings will stand Winnie, proud and defiant.

Tickets on the "wonder horse" are being sold by all members of the Legion.

Laborer—Preacher

LONDON (CP)—Rev. George Dempster, who brought the Gospel to London dockers by disguising himself as a laborer and preaching as he worked, has retired as superintendent of the British Sailors' Society.

Danger of Losing
Sunday Skating

The arena management is seriously considering eliminating Sunday skating. Reason for this is the big nickel complex of a number of adults. On Sunday last nine adults came in one after the other and everyone of them was seen to place only a big nickel each in the plate. For that nickel they received two hours skating.

It is usually those people who will not pay their proper share of anything that are the ones to howl that Coleman hasn't got this, or that, or the next thing for their enjoyment.

On numerous Sunday evenings the arena will be packed with skaters with the collection only totaling approximately $6. This amount fails to pay for light and fuel much less labor and other overhead expenses.

If skaters wish Sunday skating continued they better give heed to the management's plea that more dimes and 25c pieces be placed in the collection plate and less nickels.

Every Wage Earner Should Purchase War Savings Certificates

It is the desire of all loyal Companies in Canada that all their employees should be regular purchasers of War Savings Certificates.

While all companies try to reach 100% among their employees there are many who fail to reach this coveted goal. Why?

Some employees still cannot see themselves in this war. It is still no affair of theirs. Their narrow viewpoint cannot envision the fact that the steady employment they have enjoyed in the past four years is due largely to Canada's greatly increased war effort. The additional money gained by this steady employment should in part be invested in the country's war effort and so maintain it at peak capacity as well as it being a good business investment on their part.

The extension of military call-up regulations to include married men between 19 and 25 and the check being made to ensure that single men between 19 and 40 receive notices to report for compulsory military training indicate that the government is combining all sources of manpower to meet the needs of the forces.

Hen "Rides Rods" (C.P.R. Bulletin)

Harvey A. Brown, assistant superintendent at Souris, Man., won a $10 prize for the best "I Saw" story during the month of October. The "I Saw" contest, conducted by the Winnipeg Tribune, is designed to encourage the report of unusual but genuine, eye-witness experiences by readers.

Mr. Brown's "I Saw," which he says, "actually did happen on October 17," is as follows: "One day we picked up a carload of five chickens at Oxbow, Sask."

"During the loading, two hens got away from the loader, and at Melita, 56 miles east of Oxbow, one of the missing hens was discovered riding one of the trucks underneath the car. She was not disturbed and continued to ride in this position all the way to Souris, a total of 100 miles."

"As it was getting dark, the hen was then caught and returned to her flock."

Country Store Sales Going Up

In the country store again coming into its own? With the rationing of gas and tires and the discouraging of travelling more people in rural Canada are not wandering so far away from home these days to do their shopping.

The twenty-one merchants in Darlington and Cartwright Townships are evidently alive to present conditions for they have organized into an association to co-operate with a view to exchanging ideas to improve their stocks and services to hold business in their respective villages.

Satisfactory rules are already apparent. Country general store sales average 13.8 per cent higher during the 11 months ended Nov. 30, than in the same period of 1941, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

Sales in November averaged 15 per cent heavier than in November, 1941, throughout the country. The unadjusted monthly indexes of sales, on the base of 1936-1939 equals 100, stood at 139.5 and 121.7, respectively. — The Canadian Statesman, Bowmanville, Ont.

A.M.A. URGES LOWER MOTOR LICENSES

Reduction in the cost of motor licenses in this province was urged in a resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the Alberta Motor Association, held in Calgary recently.

In view of the restrictions on fuel supply brought about by federal rationing regulations and also the fact that the province is not in a position to keep highways up to past standards, due to wartime priorities, it was felt that lower license fees should be imposed on motorists for the duration of the war.

The province has a free hand to make such a license reduction, it was stated.

At the same time, the province, under the tax transfer agreement with the dominion, is guaranteed some $300,000 annual revenue from the gasoline tax, on the basis of 1940 collections.

A delegation from the motor association will interview the government to urge a reduction in motor license fees next year.

Stop Me If . . .

A war worker with five children was having no luck in finding a home for his family. When he finally located a vacant place he was turned down as soon as the landlady saw the carload of kids waiting to move in.

Before going to see another vacancy, the man and his wife took the children to a nearby cemetery, and left them there with a picnic lunch with instructions to stay put till the parents returned.

When the usual question of how many children was put to them, the man answered huskily, "Five but they are all out in Fairfield Cemetery."

Sympathetically the owner brought out the lease—it was signed, and the children brought in from their picnic.—The Financial Post.

Have You Had Your Iron?

What with nutrition programs, literature on cancer, how to prepare balanced meals, etc., etc., the life span should be increased; in fact one begins to wonder how we have managed to live to our present average age. Public health is now safeguarding to a degree unheard of even 25 or 50 years ago. Vitamin A, B, and so on through the alphabet are now so constantly dangled before our eyes that we are really becoming Vitamin conscious. Raisins containing iron, yeast with wonderful health-giving qualities, Grape Nuts to keep you regular, Carter's Little Liver Pills, and so on down the list—however did we manage to keep healthy without them? But we did!

Rationing of Newspaper

Rationing of newspaper will cause the cutting down of extravagant headlines in newspapers. Most newspapers heretofore have used a lot of space in setting up big headlines to make an imposing typographical display, though the news value of such could be conveyed in a tenth of the space. The most popular form of newspaper make-up for a busy man is that which conveys the news in a concise style, in which one does not have to wade through a confusion of headlines and waste space. The rationing of newspaper with many other things will meet with general approval. It might serve the purpose of cutting out some of the "pulp" magazines.

Warning re: Diphtheria

Warning to parents that diphtheria is spreading in Alberta this winter was sounded by Dr. A. Somerville, provincial inspector urged every rural family to have of communicable diseases. He every child inoculated against the disease. Initial inoculation and re-inoculation wears off after five years, said Dr. Somerville, and a single treatment will renew immunity. He declared that more adults are being infected every year and all should take preventive measures. In Edmonton, where inoculation is carried out in schools and clinics, and in rural areas the municipality and local health officers are in charge of preventive measures.

The Submarine Menace

RECENT VICTORIES on the various fighting fronts, and our growing air offensive have given rise to feelings of increased optimism among the people of the United Nations. In recent months we have, for the first time in this war, seen German armies put to flight and German cities devastated from the air. After the years in which our reverses outnumbered our victories it is with great relief that we see the tide of battle turning surely in our favor. We are warned, however, against any feeling of over-optimism, or against any tendency to exert less than a maximum effort on the home front. We still face powerful enemies and it will take a strong and sustained effort on our part to achieve the victory which now appears to be in sight.

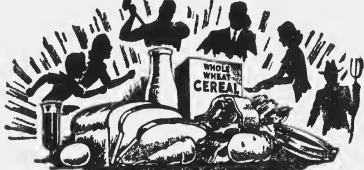

Sea-War Is Still Serious

There is one phase of the struggle about which we do not hear many details, but which has a great effect on the outcome of the war as a whole. This is the battle between the enemy submarines and the ships of the United Nations. Supplies are vital in maintaining the fighting fronts, and they are carried by sea from Britain, the United States and Canada to Russia, North Africa and the other war zones. Submarines are seriously menacing all our sea lanes and they are still a very real threat to an early Allied victory. Germany has recently developed heavy sea-going submarines of 1,000 tons, capable of a surface speed of 18½ knots. The Germans claim that these submarines can stay at sea for long periods, and can cover very great distances, because of their size, and because they can renew crews and supplies by contacting large "mother" submarines at sea. Dr. Goebbels boasts that Germany is now placing great hopes in her growing submarine strength.

Easy Victory Is Not Close

The seriousness of the U-boat menace is fully realized by the governments of the Allied Nations and great efforts are being made to deal successfully with it. It is thought that the convoy system is now less effective than it was during the last war, since modern reconnaissance facilities enable submarines to detect convoys and subject them to constant attack. It has been pointed out that while the loss of ships in these submarine attacks is most serious, sometimes the cargo lost is even more valuable than the ship, and that as long as the Germans continue to harass us in this way, there is uncertainty as to the measure of the support we can give the armies on the widely-scattered fighting fronts. This view of the war is not a cheerful one, and it reminds us that we are not close to an easy victory. There is still need for a maximum effort on our part if victory is to be assured.

Dried Fruits And Vegetables

In these days when inevitable shortages occur in certain of our basic foods, we should not overlook the possible substitution of dried fruits and vegetables as a means of balancing our daily diet. Most of us tend to forget that they exist, but they have a definite place in the diet, especially in wartime.

Dried fruits include the lowly prune, dried apricots, raisins, figs and dates. Peas, lentils, lima and navy beans comprise the better known dried vegetables.

These dried foods cannot be considered in any sense good sources of the all-important vitamin C. However, they are all generally fairly rich in iron and copper, and the vegetables have a high protein value. Dried apricots, particularly, have a high percentage of copper, which, health authorities assert, is useful in adjusting the human system to the assimilation of the iron which they also contain.

Prunes and apricots can be very tastefully prepared in desserts, and figs, dates and raisins can be used in puddings or eaten just as they are. Because of their high protein value lima beans can very well substitute for a meat dish, in these times of meat scarcity, is mighty useful. Baked in a casserole and covered with tomato sauce, they are a very tasty dish. Dried peas, of course, can be used instead of the canned variety as one of the vegetables in a meal. They must be soaked in water in order to make them soft enough for use.

Lentils or split peas are an invaluable addition to soups and stews, lending a piquant flavor all their own, that makes one ask for more.

All or most of these dried fruits and vegetables are available in our stores. Whenever you feel stuck about that midday or evening meal, it wouldn't hurt to consider them.

Recipe Of The Week

The Queen of Hearts is trumps on St. Valentine's Day. So is the hostess who serves Queen of Hearts cake on February 14, especially if it is this sweet as a nut lover, shaped like a heart, frosted in white and decorated with bright red candy hearts.

The recipe was designed to be kind to your ration card. Not nuts but crisp shreds of All-Bran give the batter that sweet, nutty flavor. Strawberry jam not sugar is employed as the sweetening agent. A seven-minute frosting is nice on top if you have an extra cup of sugar handy, but if you haven't, a jam flavored egg white frosting will bring just as much applause for the cook. The recipe goes like this:

QUEEN OF HEARTS CAKE

¾ cup All-Bran 2 egg, separated
¾ cup milk 1½ cups cake flour
½ cup shortening 2 teaspoon salt
1 cup strawberry jam 2 teaspoons baking powder

Soak All-Bran in milk about five minutes. Blend shortening with ¾ cup jam. Add egg yolks; beat well; stir in soaked All-Bran. Sift flour, salt and baking powder; add to creamed mixture alternately with remaining jam. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into deep nine-inch layer cake pan; bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes.

Remove cake from pan. Cut large heart from stiff paper. Place heart on top of cake. Cut around heart. Frost cake with meringue made of 1 egg white, 1-16 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons strawberry jam. Decorate with red candy hearts.

Note: Save part of cake that has been cut away. Serve in dessert dishes with smooth custard sauce.

More Wool Needed

The Production Of Wool Is Of The Utmost Importance

To meet the needs of the armed forces of the United Nations, and at the same time supply civilian requirements, the production of wool in the various countries is of the utmost importance. In Canada the 1943 production objective for sheep and lambs calls for an over-all increase of 12 per cent. in marketings. All the provinces, with the exception of Saskatchewan, are expected to show increases of 10 per cent. or more, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada.

Based on 1,000,000 more sheep in Canada, the goal for the 1943 wool production would be about 7,000,000 more pounds than in 1941. The Canadian production of horn wool in 1942 is now estimated at 129 million pounds, or 10.6 per cent. higher than in 1941. The main contributing factor to the larger clip was an increase of 118,000 in the number of sheep shorn.

The world supply of wool is now about to be enormously increased by the seasonal wool clips. The Australian clip now coming into the market will be well in excess of one billion pounds. The New Zealand clip will exceed 300 million pounds. Uruguay and the Argentine will have a combined clip of between 400 and 500 million pounds, including between 250 and 500 million pounds of fine apparel wools. The forthcoming domestic clip in the United States is estimated at approximately 450 million pounds. It is expected therefore that approximately an additional two billion pounds of wool will be available to the United Nations during 1943.

SWINE DISEASES

Hemorrhagic Septicemia Is Contagious Baby Pig Diseases

This is the first of a series of six articles by J. L. Miller, V.S., provincial veterinarian, Regina, dealing with more prevalent hog diseases. The remaining articles will appear weekly in the following order: Mange and Diarrhoea; Enteritis; Respiratory Worms; Anemia, Lice and Goures.

Hemorrhagic Septicemia is a contagious disease of swine and is responsible for quite heavy losses in the swine herds of this province. It is usually characterized by an inflammation of the lungs or pneumonia, and is also known as Swine Plague. Young pigs are particularly susceptible, but animals of any age may be affected. Healthy pigs are quite resistant to this infection but animals which have had their resistance reduced by exposure, shipping, parasites, or other disease conditions are very susceptible to this disease.

The cause of Hemorrhagic Septicemia is a very contagious organism known as the bacillus suis. This organism has no special powers of resistance and is readily destroyed by exposure to drying, heat, or ordinary disinfectants. This germ is frequently found in the lungs of normal healthy hogs, and appears to cause them no harm. However, it may be the reason that pigs which have had their resistance reduced from other causes frequently develop the disease. As a rule the infection enters the body by being inhaled with particles of dust, and is therefore more prevalent during dry weather.

Symptoms: The symptoms of this disease are usually divided into acute and chronic forms. In the acute form the course is rapid and may prove fatal in a few hours. Temperatures range from 104 to 106 degrees. Lack of appetite, weakness and lassitude are noticed. The skin may turn a reddish or bluish tinge just before death. In the chronic form of Hemorrhagic Septicemia the usual symptoms are those of pneumonia. High fever, short dry cough, with heavy breathing, discharges from nose and in some cases, also from the eyes. Constipation and diarrhoea, and in some cases, vomiting may be noticed. Affected pigs lie in their beds and resent being moved. The skin under the throat, the belly and around the ears may turn a red or bluish colour. Pigs so affected usually die or show evidence of improvement within a week, or in some cases gradual improvement may be noticed and then they lapse into the chronic form of the disease. The chronic form usually follows an acute attack; animals cough, and gradually lose flesh. The hair coat becomes rough and they either die or remain permanently stunted.

Post Mortems: In post mortems held on hogs dying from Hemorrhagic Septicemia, large portions of the lungs are found to be dark red in colour, solid or liver-like; if a portion of this lung is removed it will sink in water. The lungs are frequently stuck to the chest wall, and small hemorrhages may be found in various parts of the body.

Diagnosis: The diagnosis of this disease is always difficult and should never be positive unless confirmed by a laboratory examination.

Treatment: All affected hogs should be isolated from healthy animals, placed on a easily digested food and kept in comfortable surroundings. In the acute form Anti Hemorrhagic Septicemia Serum is helpful in the early stages if given in doses of 20 to 30 c.c. per 100 lbs. of pig, injected deeply under the skin. This serum is also useful to give immediate protection to hogs which have been exposed to an outbreak of this disease, for this purpose 10 to 20 c.c. injected under the skin is sufficient. Healthy swine may be protected from this disease by injections of Hemorrhagic Septicemia Bacterin. This product, however, does not give any protection for from seven to ten days after the injection has been given and is of no value in the treatment of sick hogs.

Prevention: Treatment of sucking pigs when six to ten days old with injections of Hemorrhagic Septicemia Bacterin, and repeating these injections when the pigs are two and a half months old, is recommended for the prevention of this disease in swine. If this policy were adopted as a general practice by swine breeders this disease could be effectively controlled.

Note: All hog houses, pens, etc., which have been occupied by hogs suffering from this disease should be cleaned and disinfected before being used for healthy swine.

BABY PIG DISEASE

Pigs from twenty-four to seventy-two hours old show symptoms of shivering, dullness and loss of appetite. They have a tendency to burrow into the straw, and when disturbed make a weak crying squeal. The hair coat becomes rough, the skin cold and clammy and finally the pigs lapse into a coma. Death of one or all pigs in the litter occurs in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours after the first symptoms.

Recent investigations have shown that the blood of affected pigs contains much less blood sugar than that of normal pigs. The cause of this disease is not known, but it seems to occur more frequently in baby pigs which have either been starved or not had sufficient milk during the first twenty-four hours of life.

Treatment: Treatment has not proved very successful except in the very early stages. In cases where sows do not appear to give enough milk to properly nourish the small pigs, feedings of pigs with cow's milk spread over a twenty-four hour period and continued for three or four days until the baby pigs learn to drink out of a shallow pan, is recommended.

Lesson To Be Learned

Hitler Finding Out Brute Force Cannot Conquer Free People

Hitler would like to learn that when his armies had all but surrounded it, when the city's only means of getting supplies was over waters under German bombers, he had American correspondents flown from Berlin (the United States was not yet at war with Germany) to witness its surrender. The surrender never came. Hitler was to learn that the spirit of man, his inborn love of liberty, is mightier than brute strength; the force of right stronger than the might of force. Immortal Leningrad taught them that; on other fields by other men the lesson will be driven home.—Ottawa Journal.

FIRST CONTINGENT OF FULLY TRAINED OPERATIONAL BOMBER CREWS ARE SENT FROM CANADA

A British Port—A new important landmark has been placed firmly in R.C.A.F. history with the arrival in Britain of the first contingent of fully trained operational bomber crews ever sent from Canada to the United Kingdom.

These operational crews, who have been working together for many months at operational training units in Canada, took the spotlight in a convoy which also bore other R.C.A.F. personnel, including members of the women's division and fighting men of the Royal Canadian Navy, the R.A.F., R.A.A.F., R.N.Z.A.F., the fleet air arm, the army and girls of the first British contingent of the Canadian Red Cross Corps.

Formerly R.C.A.F. personnel received training in Canada and then were posted to operational training units in Britain to receive a final brushup before going to operational units, but the time before these new arrivals will go to operations has been cut to a minimum.

This arrival was mainly an air force show, but among troops in the same convoy were reinforcements for many branches of the Canadian army. There were also members of the R.C.A.F. women's division and Red Cross girls.

Two airframe mechanics were William and Norman Pechey, twins from Prince Albert, Sask.

Among the ground crews was LAC Archie Campbell of Fleming, Sask. The women's division contingent included A.W. Rosemarie Brant of Moosemin, Sask.

Army arrivals included reinforcements for the artillery, armored corps, infantry, ordnance and service corps units. Among them were senior artillery officers.

Two sergeant wireless operators, Ralph Jarvis and Gilbert Adams of Saskatoon were among the arrivals.

The Red Cross corps contingent was the first to come overseas from the 5,000 or 6,000 members in Canada.

Some of the girls made considerable sacrifice to take the overseas assignment as their only remuneration is room, board and pin money.

All the married women in the group have husbands in the services in Britain.

HAVE HAD SUCCESS

British Have Won Many Battles With Nazi Submarines

London.—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons that there had been "periods of the most heartening success" in the fight against Axis submarines.

Because of the difficulty of confirming hits in "all the numerous attacks on enemy U-boats," however, it is not possible to say whether they are being sunk faster than they are being built, he said.

BRITAIN HAS TO MEET A DUAL PROBLEM OF SUPPLYING FOOD AND CUTTING DOWN SHIPPING

London.—Since the war began the ministry of agriculture has faced the dual problem of keeping the country fed and cutting down the number of tons of shipping required to bring food to Britain.

Before the war Britain produced less than 40 per cent of its own food and imported annually some 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 tons of feeding stuffs for farm animals. In 1942 home production was more than 65 per cent, of consumption and importation of feeding stuffs has dropped proportionately.

When surveying the British agricultural picture it must be remembered that this, a country of small farmers, some 300,000 of them in England and Wales alone. There are few big farms such as are common in Canada.

These thousands of little men had to be mobilized on a wartime basis and their complete co-operation was essential to the success of the government's food growing scheme.

Centrally conceived and directed, the plan has been locally directed by county war agricultural committees composed of land owners, farmers, farm workers and such technical personnel as was available.

COST OF LIVING

No Rise In Bonus For The Next Three Months

Ottawa.—The Dominion bureau of statistics cost-of-living index dropped from 118.8 to 117.1 during December—largely due to government action in reducing prices of certain staple foods—and as a result the cost-of-living bonuses paid to Canadian workers will remain unchanged for the three-month period starting Feb. 15.

"The January decrease was due entirely to a drop in the food index from 123.8 to 127.3," the bureau of statistics said. "The two-cent reduction in milk prices was the most important factor in the January decline, but prices were lower also for eggs, butter, tea, coffee and oranges." The cost-of-living index at the start of the war was 100.8, and the wartime increase in the cost of living in Canada thus has been 16.3 points or 16.3 per cent. Last July the cost of living was 17 per cent higher than at the start of the war, and it was the July figure on which the last revision of cost-of-living bonus payments was made.

Four of the items mentioned by the bureau of statistics as responsible for the drop in the food index were subject to recent government price-reduction action.

Early in December Finance Minister Halsey announced that "by reduction of duties and taxes and by outright subsidy" the retail cost of tea would be reduced 10 cents a pound, coffee by four cents a pound, milk by two cents a quart in most places, and oranges to about the levels of September and October, 1941.

These moves, Mr. Halsey said, were to offset increases in the cost of living due to price rises in spite of price-capping control, with the aim of bringing the cost of living "at least to the level of the way back to the level of the basic period (Sept. 15-Oct. 11, 1941)."

In accordance with order-in-council P.C. 6219, the bureau of statistics said, the price of cigarettes and tobacco in the January index does not include the tax imposed in the 1943-44 budget under the Special War Revenue Act.

SERBS SLAUGHTERED

823,000 Killed By Axis Troops And Gestapo Agents

London.—The Yugoslav government charged 823,000 Serbs had been killed by Axis troops and Gestapo agents since the occupation of Yugoslavia. The government in London said at least 27,000 persons had been shot in Belgrade alone in 1942.

It was said a new wave of German terror was sweeping Yugoslavia, where the Nazis had threatened to annihilate the entire population unless they ceased resistance to the Axis.

Out of them grew district committees and sometimes even parish sub-committees, whose job was to visit farms in their areas, draw up programs for increasing production and see that these were maintained. When Agriculture Minister R. S. Hudson said in an interview that there was complete control over farmers he meant it.

Committees were entrusted with supervision of the management and production of farming in their counties and were given wide powers of control, ranging from giving direction to the number of cattle which might be kept on agricultural land to taking possession of any land and buildings.

Latest available figures reveal that more than 2,000 "inefficient" farmers have been turned off their land. There have been no kid-glove measures where the ministry of agriculture is concerned.

Government schemes of assistance, however, have gone hand in hand with control. Major assistance, of course, is the system of fixed prices and an assured market for the principal agricultural products—guaranteed until at least a year after the war ends.

Winnipeg.—Mrs. Phoebe Howard, 79, only surviving nurse who cared for soldiers on Saskatchewan battlefields during the Northwest Rebellion, died in hospital.

In April, 1885, Mrs. Howard, then Phoebe Parsons, was gazetted one of three nurses and left by troop train and demarcated for Saskatoon, where, with two other nurses, four "dressers" and two doctors, she helped care for the wounded from the Batoche and Fish Creek Engagements. She returned to Winnipeg by river boat.

Schwandt of Strasbourg, Sask., who after two years in the Canadian Army at Basic Training Centre in Regina, Sask., have been selected to take officers' training courses. Officers can only tell them apart by observing whether one is right handed or left handed.

GERMAN REVERSES IN RUSSIA AND EFFECT ON MORALE MAY HAVE SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES

CANADIAN ARMY

British Officer Has High Praise For Force Overseas

Somewhere in England—Canadian officers and men are the finest material in the world, says Lt.-Col. Cyril Lloyd, British officer who served in the Battle of France, and now is on the Canadian overseas army's headquarters staff.

Col. Lloyd, seconded by the British army to the Canadian army, was awarded the O.B.E. in the recent New Year's honours list in recognition of his services to the Canadian force.

He says his ambition when the war is over is to go to Canada which he has never seen. He declares he likes the "Canadian method of work, the atmosphere of getting things done, the direct approach to problems."

Col. Lloyd believes that the Canadian army's staff work is as good as exists in any army because the greatest advantage was taken of the months the army has spent in Britain.

PLACE DISCUSSED

Churchill And Roosevelt Probably Settled Point Of Invasion

Washington.—Walter Nash, New Zealand minister, said President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill discussed at Casablanca whether to strike at Germany from the Mediterranean or the whole Atlantic coast or from both of these regions.

He said the time and place for invading Europe could not be published in advance since it would be valuable information for the enemy to know, but that it could be said the Casablanca meeting discussed all possibilities and "which was the best place to strike first."

"It was pretty well settled," Nash added, with further reference to the possible point of invasion.

He described the Atlantic coast as that region from the top of Norway to the bottom of the Bay of Biscay.

(By Maj.-Gen. Sir Charles Gwynn)

London.—History can show few, if any, more complete reversals of an apparently desperate situation than Stalingrad.

Hitler's sacrifice of the lives of many thousands of his soldiers in order to keep railway communications via Stalingrad closed for a few days affords proof of the immediate strategic importance of the opening of the lines.

The effect on morale and the loss of prestige entailed by the disaster may have incalculable results.

That an army the size of the one at Stalingrad should have found itself in a hopeless position must shake confidence in the higher command; that the German Field Marshal Friedrich Paulus and some 90,000 of his men refused to obey Hitler's "no-surrender" order will no doubt be remembered by other Germans called to fight to the last.

Why the German 6th Army made no attempt at a sortie to join hands with relief forces from Kotelnikowski still requires explanation. That the Russians, without rail communications, were able by circuitous routes to interpose adequate forces between the 6th Army and relief forces is not the least astonishing feature of the whole episode.

We have yet to see what will be the fate of the German army in the Caucasus. It may be presumed that a considerable proportion of its original elements have been extricated by way of Rostov. But larger forces are evidently in a precarious situation now that the last railway communication between Krasnodar and Rostov has been closed.

Evacuation by way of the Sea of Azov and Kerch strait seems, therefore, the only remaining way of escape and ice conditions will increase the difficulties.

Air Offensive To Decimate Enemy Planes

London.—Maxim of offensive air fighting is that the enemy must be made to take the air before he can be knocked down and on this basis the R.A.F.'s first raid of 1943 on Berlin may be considered a two-fold success.

In the Berlin raid on Jan. 16, when for the first time newspapermen were taken along on an operational trip of Bomber Command, Berlin was hit—hard. And more German planes than Britain has seen for months were enticed into the air, many of them to be knocked down.

The Berlin raid brought the now-famous "reprisal" raids on London and gave Fighter Command and the country's other defences their best chance to work over the German air force since Dieppe.

At Dieppe, while Canadian assault troops stormed the French beaches and the German gun sites, Allied fighters battled German fighters and, it has been estimated, destroyed anything up to one-third of the front line air strength Germany then possessed.

It is a subject open to argument, but some commentators have held that the air operations were a greater benefit to the Allies at Dieppe than the army venture.

Since then, presumably because the output of German plane factories has been more sorely needed on other fronts, Marshal Otto Sperrle, Nazi air commander in western Europe, has put only a few planes in the air at any one time.

Some months ago, when there was no sign of an air raid on London, I listened to a high air force authority talk about the air war. He said nobody should expect that the blitz had departed London for keeps, that actually its return was something for which preparations were going on night and day.

He did not mean merely that more and more shelters were being built. He meant the R.A.F. was becoming more and more offensive. He warned that when and if the Germans returned in strength it should not be expected that none would get through. "But," he added, "we shall knock down more and more of them, in ever increasing numbers and that's what we want—a chance to really hit them."

financial obligations (including a bank loan) with the exception of a rather sizeable deficit in minister's salary. In spite of this the Board of Stewards had one of their best years since Union.

The two Women's Missionary Societies have had an active year's work, and show an increased membership.

The Sunday school under the superintendency of Mr. Percy Dickieson has had one of the best years in the history of the church. In spite of the many changes and removals in the Sunday school staff we have been able to keep our classes supplied with capable and faithful teachers during the whole year and our attendance has been most encouraging with an average attendance of 75 per Sunday over a period of the full twelve months including summer holidays when the school usually is very small.

This year there is no doubt about the record of the Ladies' Association which has proved the best in the history of the church. During the last two years the ladies have been making much needed improvements to the manse, and climaxed their efforts this year by having a basement excavated and a furnace installed in good time for a bit of real winter to the delight of the occupants. During the last two years it is estimated that the ladies have spent upwards of $1000 on improvements and alterations to the manse with this last year being the heaviest of the two, but their report was presented with all bills paid and a good surplus.

Financially, practically every organization shows a marked increase, with a total increase of 26 per cent, and a total net receipt of approximately $3500. During the year practically every organization contributed to some phase of our missionary enterprises which amounted to $482 and included the War Savings campaign for the deficit of the Church of Canada. This did not include however the contributions to the Bible Society, Red Cross and other charitable causes.

The Session report revealed that the minister had officiated at 31 weddings, which was just under the record of last year, had baptized 39 children and adults and attended 10 funerals, some of whom were regular members of our church to whom fitting tribute was paid in a memorial meditation at the annual meeting.

Members re-affirmed to the Session were Messrs. Wm. Antrobus,

A. Beck, Jas. Fairhurst, Jas. Glendinning, Robt. Holmes and Chas. MacQuarrie.

Members elected to the Board of Stewards were Messdames R. Ferguson, N. Mackinnon, and Messrs. Jas. Cousins, Percy Dickieson and W. Mackinnon.

During the meeting the choir and Mrs. Robt. Holmes rendered very acceptable numbers. At the close a light lunch was served in the club room of the church.
